U. S. Planes Continue Blows Against Enemy Over Wide Pacific Area

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 6—A comparison of official figures released by Pacific fleet headquarters showed today that Japanese forces have lost almost eleven men for every American killed in the twin conquests of Peleliu and Angaur islands in the Palau group.

American casualties through October 5 totalled 1,022 killed, 6,115 wounded, and 280 missing. Jap dead for the same period totalled 11,043 killed with no figures available on the number wounded in the two successful campaigns which have broken the back of enemy resistance in the southern Palaus.

771 Marines Die

Supplemental figures issued by headquarters revealed that the veteran First Division Marines suffered the greatest number of casualties among American forces with 771 killed, 4,650 wounded and 267 missing since they stormed the Peleliu beaches on the morning of September 14.

Casualties among the Army's Eighty-First division which subdued the Angaur Japanese and later reinforced the Marines on Peleliu, numbered 251 killed, 1,465 wounded and 13 missing.

Counted Jap dead on Peleliu totalled 9,931 and on Angaur, 1,112. A previous report revealed that 187 enemy prisoners have been taken.

Headquarters also revealed that Marine corps planes are using the Peleliu airfield for bombing operations against Babelthup and Koror islands in the northern Palaus. On October 4, Corsair fighters of the Second Marine aircraft wing bombed airstrips and strafed a concentration of motor vehicles on Babelthup and on the same day hit warehouses on Koror.

Friendship Of British For King Not To Balk Anti-Monarchists

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—State department officials forecast today that the invasion of Greece will touch off such strong anti-monarchist sentiments in that country that neither King George nor any member of the Royal family will be able to return.

King George of Greece is now in London, where he enjoys the personal friendship and the support of Prime Minister Churchill. But he has been forced to accept an agreement not to return to Greece until after a plebiscite is taken to determine the form of government.

It was confidentially forecast today that the plebiscite will call for a Republican government, in which there will be strong Communist representation.

The British government is known to favor the return of the royal family to Athens, and if King George is rejected, London is prepared to recommend a regency under George's younger brother, Crown Prince Peter.

But even this will be opposed, officials said. Peter has fallen into equal disfavor with the rest of the royal family, especially since his wife, Crown Princess Frederica, is German, with two brothers in the German army.

British influence in Greece, which has been traditionally strong, has deteriorated recently, especially after the Greek mutiny last April, which resulted in sending between six and ten thousand Greek soldiers and sailors to Britain. (Continued on Page Two)

INDUSTRY MUST PROVIDE JOBS, KAISER WARNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—Henry J. Kaiser, war time shipbuilding wizard, warned today that private industry must provide postwar jobs, with or without government assistance, or collapse.

Speaking before the New York Financial Writers' Association last night, Kaiser said: "Mankind has asserted a new right as more basic and fundamental than any; namely, the right to work."

"By one means or another we are going to have full employment. If private industry and private finance cannot assure this essential, they are doomed."

TOKYO MAKES BIG CLAIM OF YANK LOSSES

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—A Japanese communique broadcast by the Tokyo radio claimed today that since Sept. 15 more than 18,000 Americans had been killed or wounded on Peleliu island in the Palu group.

The enemy accounts, recorded by the FCC, did not give any totals in each category. U. S. Pacific fleet headquarters reported yesterday that from the time of the invasion of the southern Palaus 1,022 American marines and soldiers had been killed, 6,115 wounded and 280 reported missing. Japanese casualties were put at 11,043 killed and 187 captured.

The Jap communique claimed also that an American cruiser, two destroyers, two submarines and other ships had been sunk.

The enemy claims were not substantiated in American quarters.

THOUSANDS TO PASS BY BIER OF AL SMITH

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—More than 500 police were assigned to handle huge crowds of mourners who are expected to visit St. Patrick's Cathedral tonight when the body of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith will lie in state.

The police will remain on duty until tomorrow when the funeral will be held. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt will attend the solemn pontifical mass of requiem at 11 a. m. tomorrow and Maj. Gen. Thomas A. Terry, commanding general of the Second Service Command, will be present as the President's personal representative.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey will be unable to attend the funeral because of his scheduled address in Charleston, W. Va., tomorrow night, but he will visit St. Patrick's some time this evening to pay his respects to the four-time governor of New York.

The Rt. Rev. Joseph P. Donahue, vicar general of the New York archdiocese, will preach the sermon at the funeral mass. A large part of the cathedral will be open to the general public.

KOISO WORRIED

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—Jap Prime Minister Kuniaki Koiso warned his country today that the war in the Pacific had reached "a grave situation which will decide the rise or fall of Imperial Japan." A Japanese broadcast monitored by the FCC carried the premier's warning in a transmission described as an "important statement."

WFA OPTIMISTIC OVER CIGARETS

Agency Disputes Report Of Looming Shortage Through Nation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—More cigarettes and cigars will be available for civilians "in the near future," the War Food Administration asserted optimistically today in its 1945 "outlook" report on the tobacco situation.

Differing with reports that the cigar situation would get tighter, WFA maintained "it is likely that the present cigar shortage is only temporary, inasmuch as the labor and container problems in the industry should become acute in the near future."

The agency laid the domestic cigar shortage to huge military requirements, a lack of corrugated shipping cartons and a short supply of factory labor.

As for cigars, production of which is most seriously hampered by labor scarcity and shipments to the armed forces, WFA predicted "some increase" in civilian consumption also "in the near future."

Meanwhile, cigar smokers find retail stores virtually out of low-priced "stogies," but offering plenty of higher-priced cigars in the 15 to 55-cent brackets. This situation came about, said WFA, because as a result of higher costs of labor and raw materials.

In the last fiscal year (ending June 30, 1944) the average American civilian touched matches to 1,888 cigarettes—or 60 times the (Continued on Page Two)

COUNTY BOARD STUDIES FIELD HOUSE PROPOSAL

County commissioners were scheduled to meet Friday afternoon to decide whether or not Pickaway county voters will vote on a one-mill agricultural levy at the November election, the income to be used to finance a field house and fairground.

Immediate action on the proposal is necessary because Saturday is the deadline for certifying the proposal to the board of elections in time for the general election this fall.

If the levy is approved it will raise approximately $49,000 in one year. Cost of the land proposed as the fairground site is $13,000, members of the Pickaway County Agricultural Society said Friday.

President Says Allies May Have To Fight All The Way To Berlin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—President Roosevelt's second "political" speech of the fourth term drive provided his answer today to Republican charges of communist support and that the administration plans to delay demobilization of the armed forces.

Speaking to approximately 100,000 Democratic rallies throughout the nation, Mr. Roosevelt repudiated the backing of "any person or group committed to Communism, or Fascism, or any other foreign ideology which would undermine the American system of government or the American system of free competitive enterprise and private property."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the President's Republican opponent, has lashed away at the fourth-term advocates in the ranks of Communism, and GOP leaders claim that issue has sunk deeply into the minds of the American people.

Dewey has also repeatedly charged that the Roosevelt administration plans to hold men in the armed services for a time after the war in an effort to prevent unemployment.

Roosevelt Replies

To this, Mr. Roosevelt told his radio audience his administration has been working on demobilization plans for many months and that service men "will come home and be returned to civilian life at the earliest possible moment consistent with our national safety."

During his radio talk, the President appealed for a big turnout vote and also took a slap at poll (Continued on Page Two)

RAF LEAVES HUN RAIL CENTER IN TANGLED RUINS

LONDON, Oct. 6—Communications at the German rail center of Saarbrücken, east of Metz, France, where Americans are battling to reduce the Nazi-held forts, lay in tangled ruins today after the British bomber command sent heavyweight bombers out in great strength during the night to blast the Reich.

It was said officially that great destruction resulted from the Saarbrücken raid where large fires were left blazing. An air ministry communique announced that the main objective of the Royal Air Force was Saarbrücken and said that Berlin also had been bombed.

Breaking a five-day lull in assaults against England, a number of German Heinkel robot-carrying planes launched their missiles over southern England and the London area during the night.

British coastal guns put up one of the biggest barrages in months to combat the German assault. At least two robots were destroyed in the air and one Heinkel was known to have been downed.

The air ministry said that the Heinkel which was destroyed was brought down within a minute after it released the flying bomb it carried. A 26-year-old British night fighter pilot was credited with the kill.

The night action came after more than 2,550 British-based heavy bombers and fighters, supporting Allied ground operations on the continent, made devastating assaults on Germany, dropping more than 4,500 American tons of bombs.

"SLEEP, CHUM, I'M HERE"

EXHAUSTED by days of battle, an American Marine sleeps in a sandy hollow back of the front line on Peleliu island in the Palaus. This striking picture of a warrior in repose was made by a combat photographer participating in the invasion. He found a scraggly black dog standing guard over the Yankee's sandy couch. The dog "came over" from the Japs soon after the invaders hit the beach. This is an official United States Coast Guard photo. (International)

OWI Plans for Faster Transmission of News From Pacific Theatre

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Action in the Pacific war theatre was due today for more complete coverage as the Office of War Information and the Navy department made final arrangements for vastly improved transmission of news and pictures from the Orient to the United States.

OWI officials said the new program is designed to remind Americans at home of major offensives necessary to defeat Japan and counteract any possible resurgence of interest when Germany collapses.

Amid criticisms that news of the Saipan and Guam campaigns was unnecessarily delayed at Pearl Harbor and was reported fragmentarily while the battles were in progress, George W. Healy, Jr., director of OWI's domestic branch, said that steps are underway to improve press and radio facilities.

Healy, who recently returned from a 20,000-mile, 20-day tour of Pacific bases, said the new transmission program "will permit future developments in Japan's front yard to be covered quickly and realistically."

These innovations will include facilities for commentators to report action at sea from the decks of flagships. Similar facilities were used in reporting the Normandy invasion.

The Navy also plans to make recordings of actual battles for broadcast while the attack is under way.

To provide speedier news coverage, the Navy has established a fast courier plane system from nearby scenes of action to a transmitting base at Guam. News will be censored at Guam, instead of Pearl Harbor, thereby eliminating the necessity for a 4,000-mile, 20-hour plane trip from present battle areas.

Press and radio will use the same transmitters at Guam. Facilities are also being set up to relay radiophotographs. Voice transmission, which was used to a limited degree at Palau, will increase under the new arrangements.

As the Pacific war progresses toward the Jap homeland, it was expected that other key transmission points will be established to supplement the Guam bases. The Navy, however, emphasized that its transmission facilities are being placed at the disposal of reporters "for the time being" until commercial lines can bear a major part of the huge news coverage.

MIGHTY BLOWS AIMED AT HUNS, RUSSIANS SAY

Pravda predicted that the blows would be part of the "last decisive storming of Germany."

Simultaneously, the Transocean Agency admitted that British troops have swung a bridgehead across the Lek, northern branch of the Rhine in its course through Holland.

BULLETIN

LONDON, Oct. 6—Sky, darkening swarms of American heavy bombers and fighters, probably totalling more than 2,500 warplanes, battered important military installations in three sectors of Germany, including Berlin, by daylight today.

Oil refineries, tank factories and airdromes in the area of the Nazi capital, at Hamburg and at Harburg, 68 miles east of Stuttgart, were hit heavily by 1,250 "Expresses" and Liberators and about the same number of fighters.

By International News Service

American armor came to grips with German tanks on the plains west of Cologne today and the next few days or hours are expected to show whether Nazi mobile fortifications are any better bulwarks for protection of the Reich than the Siegfried line—already pierced in three places and menaced at many more.

What appeared to be the first major encounter between American and German tanks since the Nazis picked up what remained of their belongings and scuttled headlong out of France raged beyond the Siegfried line area somewhere north of Aachen.

It may provide a decisive test of strength and fighting ability.

When the Allies were so long held up at Caen, France, by strong German emplacements outside the city, Field Marshal Sir Bernard Law Montgomery was authority for the statement that if Allied power could once come to grips with German armored strength out in the open, the result would not be long in doubt.

But no major clash occurred on the soil of France as the Germans ran too fast for the temporary haven of their westwall.

May Be Big Test

Whether the present engagement will develop into a decisive battle was problematical, but conditions seemed to be propitious for it.

FILM INDUSTRY FACES TIE-UP AS UNIONS TILT

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6—A tie-up of Hollywood's film industry was threatened today by a jurisdictional dispute between two AFL unions.

Production at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, biggest of the major studios, has been crippled by a walk-out of approximately 200 set dressers, painters and machinists and will be brought to a halt if what the workers term a "vacation" continues.

Spread of the walkout to other studios with seven other crafts and guilds joining in the movement was in prospect.

The strike grew out of a demand by a group of set dressers that the screen set designer local No. 1421 of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America be recognized as their craft's bargaining agent.

However, jurisdiction also is claimed by local 44 of the I. A. T. S. E.

PRINCIPLES AT STAKE, LOCAL DEMOCRATS TOLD

Addressing a regular meeting of the Pickaway county Democratic and Central and executive committees at the common pleas court room in Circleville Wednesday evening, Atty. Mell G. Underwood, Jr., Democratic candidate for congress in the 11th district stated: "Personalities, dead or alive, in the past, or in the present, are not in this campaign. Fundamental principles are at stake. Shall we win the war more speedily or shall we permit the dead hand of bankrupt isolationism to hinder our victory, destroy our efforts for real peace and permit needless sacrifice of American boys? Upon these issues this campaign will be waged and it is my duty as a candidate to bring into the open the truth about my opponent's voting record on important legislation."

"The dentist from Logan", Mr. Underwood, stated, "is a 'do-nothing' congressman who votes both ways on legislation just to fool the voters of the 11th district. Most of the time, however, he hides in the cloak room, afraid to take a stand."

"He ducked and dodged votes on money for rural electrification, soil conservation, incentive payments and crop insurance. For the sake of votes alone he voted both ways on the issue of strikes in wartime. He joined five 'Benedict Arnolds' in the house voting against lend-lease. He and 28 others in the house opposed any expression of cooperation with our Allies and other peace-loving nations in the formulation of a real peace. He fought consistently the entire program to hold down the cost of living. Underwood further stated: "My opponent is for the privileged few who want to wax fat during the war at the expense of the common man, the farmer, the laborer and small income groups."

After the program discussion relative to sending Christmas packages to the nearly 140 boys and girls in the service, resulted in decision to call an early joint meeting of the various societies of the church to work out the plan of getting the packages in the mail at an early date.

At the next regular meeting date a miniature Pumpkin Show will be staged, with D. E. Martin as general chairman.

FDR DENOUNCES GOP CLAIMS OF RED SUPPORT

Charges of Plan Aimed At Demobilization Delay
Also Denied

taxes imposed in some of the southern states.

Repudiates Radicals
In giving notice that he does not welcome the support of any person or group committed to communism Mr. Roosevelt added that this did not interfere with the "firm and friendly relationship which this nation has in this war, and will, I hope, continue to have with the people of the Soviet Union."

He declared that "the power of the will of the American people expressed through the free ballot is the surest protection against the weakening of our democracy by 'regimentation' or by any alien doctrines."

"It is a source of regret to all decent Americans that some political propagandists are now dragging red herrings across the trail of this national election," the President continued.

"For example, labor baiters and bigots and some politicians use the term 'Communism' loosely and apply it to every social measure and to the views of every foreign-born citizen with whom they disagree."

"They forget that we in the United States are all descended from immigrants (all except the Indians); and there is no better proof of that fact than the heroic names on our casualty lists."

Talks Demobilization
Regarding demobilization, Mr.
Roosevelt pointed out that congress with the approval of the war department and himself adopted a provision last May which reads:
"The war and navy departments shall not retain persons in the armed forces for the purpose of preventing unemployment or awaiting opportunities for employment."

He noted that War Mobilizer
Byrnes has also stated there should be orderly release at the earliest possible moment of the service men and women.

"It seems a pity," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that reckless words based on unauthoritative sources, should be used to mislead the morale of our men on the fighting fronts and the members of their families here at home."

In striking back at Republicans for making Communists' support a major issue, Mr. Roosevelt singled out for criticism a Republican senator and 12 GOP representatives who, he said, had mailed out more than three million copies of a document charging that the "Roosevelt administration is part of a gigantic plot to sell our democracy out to the Communists."

"Fear Propaganda"
The President said this "form of fear propaganda" was comparable to tactics of Hitler, Mussolini and the silver shirts and expressed confidence the American people would rebel against its use.

Appealing for a heavy vote, Mr.
Roosevelt said he did not want to win or lose by a small majority—that he wanted the result to be an overwhelming verdict by the people. He said there were many undemocratic defects in the voting laws in various states and singled out poll taxes as one of them. He noted a national election was to be held despite the prophesies of "some politicians and a few newspapers" that it was his purpose to abolish all elections.

Regarding the war, Mr. Roosevelt said it is "not won yet" and declared that German and Japanese resistance remains as determined—as fanatical—as ever. He said the Allies shall have to fight their way across the Rhine and perhaps every inch of the way to Berlin.

number smoked by the average civilian in 1930, WFA disclosed.

Wartime consumption of cigarets during World War II hit an average of 8.7 pounds per capita in 1943—substantially above the 7.3 pounds consumed in 1917 during World War I, the report revealed.

Domestic cigar consumption reached the wartime peak during the year ended June 30, 1942, when a total of six million were used.

"Since that time, the trend in consumption within the United States largely because of labor difficulties in cigar factories and large shipments to the armed services abroad, has been downward," WFA said, explaining in the 1944 fiscal year cigar consumption hit
"the lowest level in a decade."

WFA told growers that in general the outlook for tobacco during the next year or so is favorable, in view of the continued high level of domestic consumption of leaf tobacco and improved outlook for exports.

BATTLE MAY BE DECISIVE TEST OF HUN MIGHT

American Armor Slugging
It Out With Germans
West Of Cologne

Cologne, reached Beggendorf, a mile and a half beyond Ubach.

Forward spearheads of Yank armor slugged it out with the defending Nazis four miles within the Reich border in a battle to widen the latest breach in the Siegfried defenses and allow major units of the American First Army to deploy on the plain before the industrial city of Cologne.

At the scene of the original penetration of the Siegfried line, south of Ubach, American troops smashed their way slowly against strong opposition, while around Monschau, some 15 miles southeast of Aachen, heavy German artillery fire greeted American advances.

Hun Blows Checked

First Army assault troops in the Netherlands encountered stubborn Nazi resistance, and southwest of newly-captured Overloon German forces unleashed two counter-attacks. The blows were checked by Lieut. Gen. Courtney M. Hodges' men.

On the Italian front American fighters of the Fifth Army smashed out new gains against desperate Nazi resistance on the central sector of the line.

Yank spearheads captured Lolano, 15 miles south and west of Bologna on the main road to that communications hub and other elements attacking through rain cleared Nazi defenders from the town of Monzuon.

On the Adriatic sector of the line, British Eighth Army units scored new gains in high ground west of Rimini, capturing the town of Vignola, while bad weather continued to blanket lower sections of the front.

Allied land forces of the Adriatic advancing in Greece pushed along the coastal road north of captured Patras to take the fortified port of Rion six miles to the northeast. Rion guards the entrance to the strategic gulf of Corinth. Other land forces of the Adriatic units landed at Santi Quaranta (Sarande) in Albania and engaged in desperate fighting with entrenched Nazi troops.

Russ Sweep Ahead

On the eastern front Russian forces swept across Yugoslavia to the Danube, capturing the important road and rail center of Penevo only eight miles from Belgrade.
The Russian advance severed all escape routes to the north for the Belgrade garrison.

Another Russian thrust north from captured Petrovgrad gained over 18 miles up the Tisa river valley toward the Hungarian city of Szeged.

Aerial action saw heavy RAF bombers blast into shambles German communications and railway installations at Saarbrucken, while on the Italian front fighters and fighter bombers hammered German targets in the Po valley, in Greece, and at other points in the Balkans.

In the Pacific, U. S. fleet headquarters saw the blows delivered against the Philippines during the last month by Admiral William F.
Halsey's Third Fleet as substantially advancing the date on which
Gen. Douglas MacArthur will lead American troops back to those islands.

THREE ESCAPE HARM AS CAR STRIKES POLE

Three persons escaped serious injury early Friday when the car in which they were riding crashed into a utility pole at the intersection of Main and Mingo streets.

Police reported that the car driven by Clarence Armbrust of Cincinnati, a soldier, failed to negotiate the curve from Route 22 onto Main street, went across the street and the right side of the car was demolished as it sideswiped the pole.

Armbrust, Mrs. Ray Maer, Hamilton, wife of the owner of the car, and her baby, suffered only shock and bruises, police said.

Police said Armbrust was en route home on furlough and was driving the Maer car home because the husband had been transferred from a Virginia camp where he had been stationed.

"Our rubber experts knew how to make it but the most practical process at the time required huge amounts of industrial alcohol... far beyond the already overtaxed capacity of our industrial alcohol plants. So, overnight, our country's beverage distillers stopped making whiskey and produced hundreds of millions of gallons of the vitaly needed alcohol."
"As a matter of fact, Sally, a high government official said recently '...synthetic rubber is from 6 to 9 months ahead of where it could have been if alcohol had not been available for butadiene production.'"
"We were really fortunate, weren't we Judge, to have a beverage distilling industry in existence... able to help perform this great wartime miracle!"

ARGENTINE NAZISM
DIPLOMATIC relations with Argentina have been growing worse for some time, and now are deadlocked. Trade relations have ended. American ships are forbidden to call at Argentine ports. Export licenses for shipment of goods to that country are reduced to a minimum, and may soon be forbidden altogether.
This is inevitable results of the Argentine government adopting a virtually totalitarian system after the German model, and associating itself with the Axis powers of Europe. It represents the first break in the formerly solid Latin-American line of co-operation and defense. Some other governments in that area have been flirting with the Axis, but none have gone so far as Argentina in the betrayal of Pan-American freedom and solidarity.
Most of the Argentine people are believed to be good Americans at heart, but this break in the dike might become serious. Wise handling of Latin-American relations is now very important.

AN EXPERT RECOGNIZED
STANLEY K. Hornbeck, just appointed minister to the Netherlands, is an example of the many federal employees of high specialized skill who keep the government going. After many years on the University of Wisconsin faculty, he served with the Paris Peace Commission as adviser in the Far East. For nearly 20 years since then he has been with the State Department, from 1928 to 1937 serving as chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs. Since 1937 he has been a department adviser on political affairs.
Few Americans know more about diplomacy and world politics than Hornbeck. The Netherlands after the war will be near the heart of the ticklish re-organization of Europe. The greatest expert skill available will be none too much for the occupant of the American ministry there. By all indications, Hornbeck is admirably qualified for a most important post.

A GIRL'S KICK
THE turning of the European tide is illustrated rudely, but effectively, in a new picture from Toulon, France. It shows a young French girl on the street giving a swift kick to a sturdy German prisoner, where it will do the most good. The victim doesn't dare to retaliate, as he would in a safer situation.
This is a symbol of things to come. From present indications it will not be long now until the intruding Boche is kicked out of France. Not so soon, perhaps, as most people have been hoping, but at least some time this winter.

When the war is over, the conferences will keep right on.

WASHINGTON Report

Mrs. Roosevelt Hailed as A Compelling Personality
China Still Great Enigma To Her Occidental Allies
By HELEN ESSARY
WASHINGTON—This campaign for the White House, unlike most other such campaigns, has a new issue—the wife of one of the candidates.
I speak, of course, of Mrs. Roosevelt, excitedly discussed from the northern to the southern borders, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.
Mrs. Roosevelt is a real issue in this 1944 race for the presidency. She is an issue because of her extra-curricular activities and because of her opinions, opinions which do not always sound meek and mild.
Strong The other First Ladies have been talked about hotly in White House election years in this country. But not because of their importance as public citizens, so to speak.
Opinions Rachel Jackson was a "femme fatale" who had lived without the help of the divorce court with the doughty Andrew. (There had been a perfectly honorable misunderstanding of court rulings.) Yet Rachel was spoken of freely when Jackson was running for the highest office. She, however, was discussed in terms of scandal.
Held So was Frances Folsom who married Grover Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland had not the sweetest of personal reputations when he married his lovely ward. So the lovely ward was gossiped about by people who wanted to defeat Cleveland.
With Mrs. Roosevelt, the situation is different. She is caricatured. She is the subject for editorials, speeches—platform and drawing room variety. She is as much of an issue in the coming election as well almost as how much aid we should send to once occupied countries.
This is the first time such a thing has happened to any woman. It would appear that we are getting on in the world!

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

PLAN FOR GERMAN OCCUPATION
WASHINGTON—The details as to how Germany is to be divided into three parts after the armistice hitherto have been a carefully guarded secret among Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin. The plan was broadly agreed to at Teheran, but since then has been signed in more detail. Here is the general outline:
The Russian Army will take over eastern Germany to a point 200 miles east of Berlin. Its occupation area will extend from the Baltic along a rough line stretching from Rostock on the sea down through Hanover, Magdeburg, Leipzig to the Czech border.
In the west the British Army will occupy Germany from the border of the Netherlands to the Russian line and from Denmark to the Rhineland.
The American Army will occupy southern Germany, including portions of the Rhineland, all of Bavaria, Munich, and all of Austria.
The occupation of Berlin itself will be a joint affair, with the United States, Britain and Russia sending an equal number of troops to make their headquarters in the German capital.
All this explains the current grouping of Allied forces on the German front. That is why the British are fighting in Holland while U. S. troops batter the central part and southern end of the Siegfried Line.
It is felt that the occupation will not be easy, that all groups must carefully work together from the very start. That's why two separate political and military Allied missions are prepared to move into Berlin immediately after the armistice and make the German capital headquarters for the occupation of the conquered Reich.
WALLACE LOOKS TO 1948
Vice President Henry Wallace has kept it secret thus far, but he plans to go into Senator Harry Truman's state of Missouri this month, and campaign for the Roosevelt-Truman ticket.
Wallace is now busily trying to re-elect Roosevelt and is also eagerly mending his own political fences on the long range chance that he'll be the Democratic Presidential candidate in 1948. Thus, Wallace is now moving into the key states of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota, will not return to Washington again until after election day.
In all these states, Wallace had some delegates at the Chicago convention, finally lost out because he didn't have enough.
Already on his tour Wallace has made many friends in Pennsylvania among Democratic delegates who opposed him last July.
One unusual technique Wallace uses on his current campaign tour is to meet with the mayor of every city. When he met Fiorello La Guardia in New York, recently Wallace was asked by the Little Flower why he saw so many mayors. Wallace grinned. Added La Guardia:
"You couldn't be trying to swipe my job as President of the United States Mayor's Conference, could you, Henry?"
"No," replied Wallace, "I'm not that much of a fireman."

DIET AND HEALTH

Treatment for Ulcer
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
"REMEMBER that there is a patient who has the disease as well as a disease which has the patient. It is just as important to treat one as the other."
In no department of medical practice is this standard bit of medical wisdom more constantly applicable than in the management of the patient with ulcer of the stomach or ulcer of the duodenum.
A chronic dyspepsia may originate from functional or organic causes. The functional cases are those in which it is impossible to demonstrate any actual disease of the tissues of the stomach or the rest of the digestive system. They are often called nervous dyspepsia, but a better name would be character dyspepsia. "My disposition depends on you and my indigestion depends on my disposition" is the theme song of the reflex dyspeptic.
Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.
Organic Dyspepsia
Ulcer and gallstones are far and away the commonest causes of the organic type of dyspepsia, accounting for 90 per cent of cases.
Ulcer of the stomach is, however, a curious combination of organic disease and personality type. We do not know the cause of ulcer, but we know it is associated with an increased flow of the normal secretion of the stomach—which contains a good deal of hydrochloric acid, which is capable of eating off the surface of an ulcer that has started to heal. We know that the secretion of hydrochloric acid is stimulated by many emotional experiences—such as worry, fits of temper, grief, anger, etc. In the management of an ulcer patient it is therefore just as important to keep the tenor of his life calm as it is to maintain control of his diet and his neutralizing medication. Which brings us back to the statement with which we headed this article.
Dr. Walter Alvarez, of the Mayo Clinic, has reported an interesting series of patients in the last "Journal of the American Medical Association," which illustrate the effect of the emotions on causing relapses of stomach ulcers:
"A man discovered one day that the man who for 20 years had been his brother-in-law, his closest friend and his business partner had been falsifying the books in order to steal from him. All that night he lay awake in great mental distress, and next day he had a big stomach hemorrhage."
"A woman who adored her peevish little daughter-in-law one day inadvertently offended her and brought down on her head a storm of abuse which nearly killed her. Next day a long-healed ulcer flared up and perforated."
"A woman who heard that her soldier husband had just been killed at the front promptly had a hemorrhage. Another man, when a strike in his factory distressed him terribly found himself incapacitated by the recurrence of a pain from an ulcer."
These experiences point up Dr. Alvarez's moral.
"It is suggested that when a patient who has had an ulcer goes through an emotional crisis he should immediately start taking food every hour or two. He shouldn't wait for the expected flare-up or hemorrhage or perforation. The extra feedings are probably most needed between the hours of 10 p. m. and 3 a. m."

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT
DWIGHT RAYNOR held Anne tight. "It means my life to have you," he told her. "What has come over you? You used to love me. As for that young boy you introduced me to at the hotel in Washington, I know you said that because you were hurt. I see it all now. You thought I'd jilted you to marry money. You wanted to make me feel you didn't care and were gayly marrying yourself. You took me in for a while, but now it's so clear. Look straight into my eyes and try to deny it."
"I can't deny it."
He kissed her and released her gently. "Now I don't have to worry about that. That dull boy in a military suit, with a wrong size collar and his shoes unshined, isn't your kind of a man. He looked as if you had looked him up somewhere to help him look for a job. Have I sized him up wrong?"
She sat, hands limp, in her lap, staring out at the dark street and across it past the church where the moonlight was silvery on the broad reach of the river. It was half a minute before she answered, so softly he could barely hear her:
"Yes. You sized him up right."
"I thought so. I'd be much more inclined to be worried about this Russell Smith. I noticed the way he looked at you. I suspect he is in love with you."
She forced herself to face him. "Russell has been engaged to Laura for five years."
He chuckled. "That's it. Then you came along and got Russell fussed."
"I don't think he's the kind of man who gets fussed. He's a lawyer."
He patted her hand. "All men get fussed. Don't let anybody tell you different. Every man has a weak spot. Don't smile, I have mine, too. The fact that I'm sitting here quietly proves it. I turned down Newport to come here."
"Lois Ryan?"
"No." He laughed. "If you're going to tease me about Lois, I shall retort what about Russell. I'm quite sure he must have tried to make love to you. No man could resist."
"He's engaged to Laura."
"So you said before, sweetheart. I almost think you're stressing it too much, but no matter. Laura's a charming girl. Lots of vivacity—and brains, too. She's the kind of girl who could get along anywhere, if she made up her mind. A very sensible girl."
Anne stood up, smiling, and repeated his words: "I almost think you're stressing it too much—but no matter."
He jumped up and took her arm. "Let's go for a little walk, at least. I don't suppose Talbot has any night life."
"We could eat ice cream." She tried to say it as lightly as possible.
"Good. Ice cream would be nice. It's a long time since we sat on stools and drank sodas. I remember you dared me to. I think you wanted to see if I was human."
"Are you?"
He leaped down the steps with her. "You'll see. I'll have whatever has the most whipped cream and sauce and nuts on it. I want to see what has been the attraction that kept you down here, hiding away from me."
She was glad of his change in mood. She didn't want him to be serious. After a sundae at Johnson's store, she would say she was tired and go to her room. She could not afford to make any decisions now. She had been frightened when he spoke of not going through with the operation, though she had tried not to show it. He must stay and do it. It was her job to keep him at any cost.
So she joked with him about New York as they walked down the street. As they went up the two steps into the store someone was coming out and almost bumped into them. She gasped. It was Dan. While she stood helpless, Dwight caught his hand and shook it gayly.

For Friday, October 6
STARRING and bewildering events are likely to transpire on this day, with radical and far reaching effect on the future, its fortunes and destiny. This may involve sudden disruption, upheavals, an about-face of plans and objectives with dramatic romance and adventure. This may beget unlooked for expense, outlay of nervous force and energy as well as capital. Several strange factors are concerned, calling for discretion and prudence, although original ways and means promise high accomplishment. An artistic or dramatic career may promise distinction and possibly public acclaim.
Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of sudden and unpredictable upheavals, change, extraordinary and inexplicable events, with denouements involving the future and its fortunes with radical force. Complete change of plans and objectives are in order, to conform with strange and unusual factors. These make for progress and adventure, the issue depending on the cleverness and sagacity with which opportunities are manipulated. An extra outlay of funds and energies is demanded, with emotional crises determining the eventual outcome. If handled judiciously there may be romance, unique adventure and public recognition.
A child born on this day should be splendidly endowed with creative talents, ingenuity, originality, fitting it for an outstanding career, of romance and conspicuous recognition.

"The Authority on Authorities"
TEMPT HIM TO MISPLAY
ONE OF the greatest possible thrills for a declarer comes from making a contract which would be impossible except through enticing a defender to make a particular mistake. Later the opponent may point out that his contract could have been defeated, but that should only add to the joy of the one who has managed to pull it out of the fire.

Three clubs were led against that contract, the last being ruffed by the diamond 3. The spade Q was scored, and the diamond 2 led, East discarding a club.
That made things look pretty bad for the declarer, who had to get all of the remaining tricks. But he was one of the world's greatest, Howard Schenken, and he was engaged in national play for the Vanderbilt Cup. So he figured out how he might pull through—and did.
He took that fifth trick with the diamond K, put down the spade K and led the A. As he hoped, West discarded on this, his heart 5. Then came the heart Q, which West refused to cover, and the spade 7, on which West trashed a second heart, dummy ruffing with the diamond 5. The heart A furnished a discard of the last spade, the heart J was ruffed by the diamond A, and Mr. Schenken led his last diamond, finessing the dummy's 10, the diamond Q making the final trick.
West pointed out that he would have beaten the contract if he had ruffed the spade A with the diamond 7. That would have obliged the dummy to over-ruff with the 10, destroying the Q-10 tenace over the J-9 and assuring West of the setting trick later on. But Mr. Schenken only smiled when attention was called to the mistake which he had induced from his opponent.

Club Observes National Business Women's Week

Public Affairs Dinner Held At Hotel

Circleville Business and Professional Women's club marked its participation in National Business Women's week at a Public Affairs dinner Thursday at the Pickaway Arms where 52 members and guests were served. Mrs. Bernard V. Young, commissioner of the Circleville and Pickaway County Girl Scout association, was guest speaker. Ministers of the city were invited to the dinner meeting. The Rev. George L. Troutman, the Rev. E. E. Huston and the Rev. L. C. Sherburne being present.

Dinner was served at 7:30 p. m. at tables centered with arrangements of Fall flowers and lighted with blue tapers in crystal holders. A flat arrangement of mammoth dahlias flanked with candles was used on the speakers' table. These beautiful flowers were a gift to the club from Mrs. Turney Pontius of Thatcher.

The group repeated the club Collect preceding the dinner hour. Mrs. Oland Boetwick, club president, welcomed the members and guests and turned the program over to Miss Rose Good, public relations chairman, who introduced the guests. The three ministers spoke briefly preceding an interesting review of the history of Girl Scouting in Circleville and Pickaway county presented by Miss Ruth Stout, a troop leader, and training director for new leaders.

In connection with Miss Stout's presentation of the Scout work, she introduced Carol Goodchild of the Brownie pack, the youngest group of Scouts, Nancy Eshelman, of the Intermediate Scouts, and Ann Curtain, of the Senior Service Scouts, who told of the work of the Scouts of the three age groups and mentioned also the things that most interested them in Girl Scout work. Mrs. Young told of the entire set-up of the Pickaway Girl Scout association; discussed the origin of Girl Scouting in the United States, the movement starting in England and being introduced in this country by Juliet Lowe in 1912, on March 12 of that year. The first troop was formed in Savannah, Ga., Miss Lowe's home town. Now there are almost 1,000,000 girls in Scouting.

Mrs. Young said that the aim of Scouting was to show girls how to use in a practical way what they have already learned. Girl Scout work in this community began about 10 years ago, but has not been continuous because of lack of leaders. In the county, there are now seven troops with 190 girls enrolled, and many more ready to join when there are leaders for new troops.

She said that an attitude of interest in the girls, the leaders and the program planned was the great need of the association. A vision for the future was needed and on the practical side, she stressed the great need for a permanent place for meetings.

Miss Rosemary Schreiner entertained the group with two solos, "The Spirit Flower" and "Lilacs," with Miss Abbe Mills Clarke as her accompanist.

Mrs. Harriet Hennes played accompaniments for group singing. The attractive decorations of the tables were placed by Mrs. Wilma Phebus, Miss Catherine Turner, Mrs. Evelyn Goeller and Mrs. G. G. Campbell.

Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. William Brown, Circleville Route 2, entertained at a delightful miscellaneous shower at her home, honoring Mrs. Doris Schleich Reynolds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Schleich, of Williamsport. The bride received many useful gifts from her friends.

Those invited for the occasion were: Mrs. Donald Forquer, Mrs. Charles Forquer, Miss Mary Ellen Whitesed, Mrs. Charles Smiley, Mrs. William Keller, Miss Maxine Wright, Miss Phyllis Weaver, Miss Doris Hulse, Miss Florence Rebecca Henson, Miss Marita Neff, Mrs. William Neff, Mrs. Walter Wright, Miss Helen

WILKS, KRAMER MOUND CHOICES FOR THIRD GAME

Blix Donnelly, Ken O'Dea Heroes As Cards Tie Up World Series

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6—A rookie with a sparkling record, Ted Wilks, and a veteran who suddenly found himself this season, by name Jack Kramer, opposed each other today in an expected hurling duel in the third game of the all-St. Louis World Series, the game that must break a one-one deadlock.

Wilks, brought up from the bushes by the Cardinals this season, had one winning streak of 11 in a row and concluded the campaign with an incredible record of 17 victories against four defeats. He is a medium sized gent with a curve and a fine change of pace to stand the opposition on their ears. He's a young Pole out of Fulton, N. Y., originally, now cast in such prominence that he scarcely can believe it himself.

Kramer is burdened with the task of putting the Browns back in the lead which they lost Thursday with a 3 to 2 defeat in 11 innings. He is a fast ball hurler, who prominently figured in the Browns' late season rush to the pennant against all comers in the American League. He worked in a shipyard for a time since the war started, then joined the Seabees and on his discharge reentered baseball to be brought out today against Wilks in this all-important third game of the series. The winner here can very well go on to the world championship. That winner will need only two more triumphs.

The stage for this situation was set in that game yesterday, when the Browns went slightly to pieces afield to make four errors and finally blew it all when a fat old catcher named Ken O'Dea came up to bat as a pinch hitter in the last half of the 11th for the Cards.

Ray Sanders, the Cards' first baseman, had singled to open the 11th; Whitey Kurowski, the third baseman, had sacrificed and Slats Marion, the shortstop, had been purposely passed, when O'Dea came up with one out to bat for Emil Verban, the second baseman. The score was tied at 2-all. O'Dea slashed a hit to right. Sanders scored and the Browns were deadlocked one-all in games.

But the actual hero of the game was a rookie pitcher of the Cardinal farm named Sylvester Donnelly, who for the second day in a row went in as pinch-pitcher and this time turned in a performance to rank with the greatest ever seen in the World Series.

He relieved Max Lanier in the eighth with Mike Kreevich on second as a result of an opening double. Donnelly, a fire balling right hander, then struck out three men while walking only one to end that threat, and all told fanned six, from there on to the finish.

He also contributed one play that will be talked about perpetually. This came in the first half of the 11th when the Browns might have won. George McQuinn, the first baseman, opened with a double against Donnelly, who seemed to be getting a little shaky under the strain of his efforts. Then Mark Christian, the Brown third baseman, laid down a bunt between the box and third base. Donnelly raced over off the mound, scooped up the ball and with a perfect throw nailed McQuinn at third on a close play that meant the difference. The next Brown hitter, Gene Moore, hit a long fly that would have brought in that run and give the Browns a one run lead, if not starting them on a rally.

Donnelly thus was credited with victory over George Muncie, the Browns' ailing right-hander, who started the seventh after Nelson Potter had been removed for a pinch hitter.

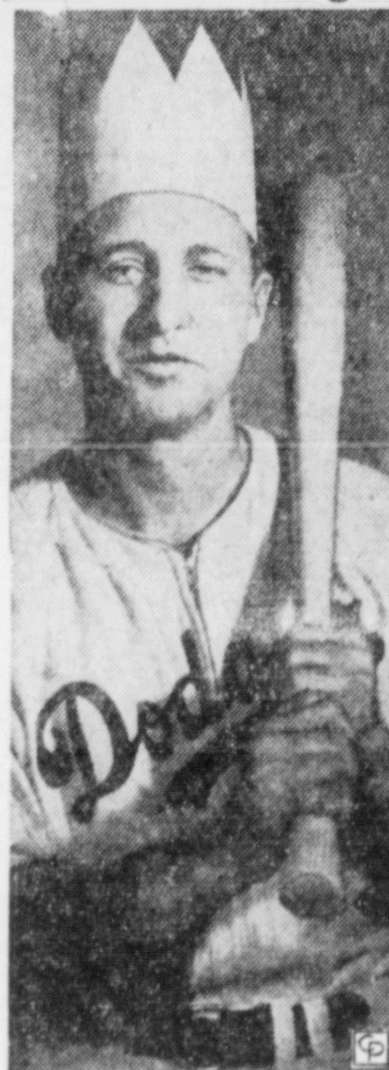

The game was a little ragged by virtue of the Browns' four errors, two of which were committed by Potter on one play, but thrilling to the St. Louis customers, who never seem to be quite certain for whom they are rooting.

It was thrilling in the extreme in the Browns' seventh inning. The Cards had picked up single runs in the third and fourth innings to lead 2 to 0 as the Browns came up in the stretch frame. Lanier had allowed only one hit to the Browns up to this time.

Two were out in that seventh when Gene Moore made the Browns' second hit—which also was his second hit—and Red Hayworth doubled him home. Frank Mancuso then hit for Potter and singled Hayworth across to tie the score.

All of which, as it turned out, merely gave the Browns a temporary lease on life. When McQuinn was thrown out by Donnelly in the 11th they were through, while the Cards had one more spark left,

Hail the King!

PERHAPS this is a somewhat belated acknowledgment, but Dixie Walker, Dodger outfielder, reigns as the batting king of the National league this year. Walker's mark of .357 was high for both leagues. (International) that one in the last half of the 11th topped off by O'Dea.

Investigation Ordered Into Pollution Of Scioto River

OHIO HEALTHER ACTS FOLLOWING FILING OF SUITS

Columbus Disposal Plant Subject Of Criticism— Damages Claimed

An investigation of pollution of the Scioto river below Columbus had been ordered Friday by Acting Health Director James Bauman.

The probe opened after traces of contamination in the river were found as far south as Circleville and 15 more damage suits were filed against the city of Columbus. Pollution is blamed on overflow from the Columbus sewage disposal plant.

Dr. A. D. Blackburn, Pickaway county health commissioner, said samples taken under the bridge at Circleville showed free sewage in the river when tested by a Columbus chemist.

Dr. Blackburn said that that contamination in the river here was not enough to create a health menace, but that it did cause a disagreeable odor.

Nine suits were filed against Columbus last Saturday and one Monday by residents of Shadeville and six more were filed Thursday by persons living in and near Shadeville. The new suits brought to $100,000 damages sought.

The suits charged that odors and stench from the river caused nausea, sore throats, colds and other ailments and made living in the vicinity of the river extremely unpleasant.

CITY PUPILS TO COMPETE IN ESSAY CONTEST

An essay contest with an historical background will be conducted in Circleville high school. Principal J. Wray Henry announced Friday.

The contest, to begin at once and end October 25, is being sponsored by the Grand theatre in connection with the showing here October 15 of the picture "An American Romance", which tells the story of an immigrant who rose from a mucker in the Minnesota iron mines to be a power in the steel and automobile industry.

Pupils of Circleville high school will compete with those from schools in about 100 cities in the Mid-West. The writer of the essay judged best here will receive a $25 war bond. Then this local prize winning essay will be sent to Cincinnati to compete with prize winning essays from other cities in the four-state area where the film is to be shown. Prizes of $200, $100 and $50 will be awarded to the writers of the three best in the area.

Essays must be not more than 500 words. The subject will be "Why I Am Proud to be an American".

SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Suit for divorce was filed in common pleas court Thursday by Robert Redman against Vesta Redman. The plaintiff charges neglect. The petition states the couple was married Jan. 21, 1921, and has seven children, ranging in age from four to 22 years. The plaintiff asks that the defendant be given custody of the five minor children; that a property settlement be approved and alimony set by the court.

HEAT SAVING ADVANCED CITED TO ROTARIANS

Scientific advances in the art of saving heat were outlined at the Thursday meeting of the Rotary club in Pickaway Arms when B. O. Newhart talked and showed moving pictures of home insulating.

He showed how heat penetrates wood and brick walls, much of it being wasted by going out through walls. He told of the different types of insulation. Asbestos is used to wrap pipes and other metal heat conductors to keep the heat in. He said rock wool insulation is made of solid rock and will not burn.

Newhart said insulation is harnessed heat, essential in many cases and economy in others. Modern developments in insulation are the result of scientific research which started 80 years ago.

no financial aid from the Democratic National Committee.

The White House didn't announce it, but the other day ex-Justice Jimmy Byrnes, now War Mobilizer, was offered the prize job of U. S. High Commissioner for the Occupation of Germany. This is considered one of the most important assignments in all post-war Europe, and the President wanted Jimmy to have it in compensation for hurt feelings when he was not accepted as Vice President at Chicago.

Byrnes, however, turned the choice plum down. He is intent on going back to South Carolina to practice law, take life fairly easy, perhaps even dabble in politics again. He has given up any idea of returning to the Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, the President has decided not to appoint Diplomat Robert Murphy as High Commissioner for Germany, unless Cordell Hull is able to conjure up more persuasion than in the past. FDR is peeved over the unfavorable reaction to Murphy's appointment as adviser to General Eisenhower, isn't anxious to award him any more promotions.

CIVILIAN CZAR HENDERSON

Ex-OPA Czar Leon Henderson, who is being considered as economic boss of occupied Germany (not High Commissioner), was walking down Fifth Avenue the other day intent on watching Herbert Hoover.

down over his eyes, was striding through the heart of New York, not a soul recognizing him, not a person turning to stare. Ex-OPA Administrator Henderson, fascinated, followed close behind.

Suddenly a hand reached out and clutched Henderson's shoulder. It was the arm of the law. Startled, Leon looked up. He had not been aware that he was jay-walking, picking pockets, or violating OPA price ceilings.

"How about taking me with you to Germany," said a New York cop. "I heard you were going to be made boss of what the Germans can eat and wear—give 'em an OPA system, or something. How about taking me along?"

Leon recognized a policeman he had known years before, said that if he got the job in Germany he would take the copper with him.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, formerly the Widow Galt, was the only member of the Woodrow Wilson family who did not require a financial deal in order to permit her impersonation in Darryl Zanuck's history-making film, "Wilson." Mrs. Wilson refused to take a dime, requested that her check be sent to the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Foundation — quite a contrast to some others. Twentieth Century-Fox had to pay off the "five percent boys." Instead of getting five percent for selling to Uncle Sam, they will get five percent for selling for Uncle Sam. For instance, the War Food Administration now has a large surplus of canned goods. In case processors can't take it back, the WFA plans to give a commission of five percent to sales organizations which can sell it. War Surplus Administration plans to do the same thing with real estate, perhaps other government property.

INVENTORY FILED

Inventory filed in probate court Thursday appraised the estate of the late Amos Tatman at $1600, all of which is real estate located in Derby. Appraisers were W. G. Bauhan, H. R. Matthews and Edward Ridgway.
